This brochure has been prepared by the Association of the Luxembourg Fund Industry (ALFI) in order to provide general background information on the legal and taxation aspects of regulated hedge fund vehicles domiciled in the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg.

For the purpose of this brochure the term “hedge fund” refers to “alternative investment funds” which can inter alia be characterised by the following criteria:

- Use of alternative investment strategies;
- Use of short selling, derivatives and increased leverage;
- Pursuit of absolute returns, rather than measuring investment performance relative to a benchmark;
- Broader mandates than traditional funds in order to give managers more flexibility to shift strategy and adapt portfolio composition;
- Usually recourse to a prime broker offering services such as custody of assets, trade execution, clearing and financing.

The choice of the most appropriate investment regime will depend on the target investor base, the type of investments to be made and specific distribution and tax considerations.

Hedge funds in Luxembourg are commonly regulated products. While offering a diverse and flexible legal and regulatory framework for a wide range of investor needs, Luxembourg-based hedge funds are supervised by the Luxembourg supervisory authority, the CSSF. Luxembourg-based service providers such as fund administrators, depositaries, auditors and lawyers have the appropriate expertise and tools to service hedge funds. Hedge funds may be domiciled and administered in Luxembourg but can also be located off-shore and have their administration in Luxembourg.

Luxembourg based service providers have teams specialising in servicing the hedge fund industry and offer a wide range of customised services in fund and investment structuring, fund administration, custody and audit services.

This brochure is not intended to be a comprehensive study. ALFI cannot be held responsible for any errors or omissions or for the results obtained from the use of the information contained in this brochure. Readers should seek the advice of qualified professionals before making any decision as to the most appropriate Luxembourg hedge fund structure.

This document reflects the legal situation as of November 2014.

CHAPTER I - LUXEMBOURG, A PRIME LOCATION FOR HEDGE FUNDS	4
CHAPTER II - LEGAL AND REGULATORY FRAMEWORK	6
Overview of legal structures available for hedge funds	7
Appendix I - Outline of available legal forms	10
Appendix II - Glossary of terms	12

With 3,900 funds, some 13,700 units and assets under management of more than EUR 3,000 billion at the end of September 2014, Luxembourg is Europe's leading and the world's second largest investment fund domicile (after the United States). The Luxembourg fund centre is the prime location for pan-European and global distribution of Undertakings for Collective Investment in Transferable Securities (UCITS).

Drawing on the success of the UCITS brand, Luxembourg has been able to build up a similar track record in alternative funds, including hedge funds and funds of hedge funds.

The success of the financial centre is grounded in the social and political stability of the Grand Duchy and on a modern legal and regulatory framework that is continuously updated, inspired by regular consultation between the Government, the legislator and the private sector.

The legal and regulatory framework that has been created over the years, combined with Luxembourg's longstanding economic openness to the outside world, has attracted banks, insurance companies, investment fund promoters and specialist service providers from all over the world.

Whereas most Luxembourg alternative investment funds were in the past created as Undertakings for Collective Investment (UCIs) under Part II of the 2010 Law, the introduction of the specialised investment fund (SIF) in 2007 has successfully paved the path for a new generation of alternative investment funds for a qualified international investor base. A convergence of traditional hedge fund products and UCITS products has also become noticeable as more and more alternative investment strategies are implemented under the provisions of Part I of the 2010 Law (UCITS).

Supervised by a competent and proactive regulatory authority, the Luxembourg financial centre is characterised by a strong culture of investor protection and rigorous anti money laundering policies. The workforce is multilingual and multi-cultural, with a long tradition of financial expertise and extensive experience of the needs of an international clientele.

The following regulatory frameworks can accommodate hedge fund products:

- SIFs under the SIF Law;
- UCIs under Part II of the 2010 Law;
- UCITS under Part I of the 2010 Law.

SOPARFIs under the Companies law (1915) are not commonly used and therefore not explored in more detail in the brochure.

The choice will largely depend on the investment strategy selected and the target investor base. UCITS are subject to more stringent regulation and the implementation of alternative investment strategies within the UCITS framework must be in strict compliance with guidelines of the European Securities and Markets Authority (ESMA). Thus, depending on their individual needs, promoters have the choice between regulatory regimes adapted to the strategy and target investor base.

In addition, those hedge funds which do not qualify for one of the exemptions provided for under the Alternative Investment Fund Managers Directive (AIFMD) will have to comply with the provisions of the AIFMD and the implementing legislation.

The AIFMD (the Directive) sets requirements which must be met by alternative investment fund managers (AIFM) and which cover authorisation, capital, marketing, organisation, remuneration, conduct of business, conflicts of interest, delegation and transparency. Specific provisions cover the use of leverage and acquisition of major holdings and control. In return for more regulation of the AIFM, their service providers and the alternative investment funds (AIFs) managed by the AIFMs, the Directive provides for the introduction of a pan-European passport enabling AIFM to offer their management services and to market their AIFs throughout the European Economic Area (EEA).

Although the Directive is in place to regulate primarily AIFMs and indirectly the AIFs they manage, all major stakeholders are affected: managers, investors and service providers. The harmonised distribution regime is an opportunity that will make hedge funds a more widely accessible and attractive asset class than before. It is expected that, over a period of time, the Directive will establish a quality “AIF brand” for AIFMD-compliant funds, comparable to the UCITS brand established by the UCITS Directive for traditional retail funds.

Luxembourg transposed the Directive into law with the Law of 12 July 2013 on Alternative Investment Fund Managers (the Law). However, the Luxembourg regulated hedge fund “products” formed under the SIF Law or Part I or Part II of the 2010 Law already display many of the features that has now become standard under AIFMD. Luxembourg aims at duplicating the Luxembourg UCITS success story in the area of alternative investment funds.
